To prepare plain boiled rice, set to boil about two quarts of water. Pick over and wash one cupful (one-half pound) of rice, Drop into the rapidly boiling water slowly so as not to stop the water from boiling. Occasionally lift the rice from bottom with a fork. Rice requires about twenty minutes boiling.

Remove a grain and crush it with the finger. If no hard center remains, it is done, Drain it from the water Rinse thoroughly in a strainer with running water. This will give about four cups of cooked rice. Spread it out on a shallow plate and set it duy in an oven with door ajar, or on top of an asbestos plate on the gas flame. When dry, it is ready for serving in the many delightful ways the peoples of the world have invented for this staple article of dict. One of these simple ways is to reheat the portion desired in a very generous quantity of fresh milk in a double boiler. It may be sprinkled
